Dear Friends,

When my great-great aunt, Esther McCollough (a staunch Methodist and an important influence on me), passed away in 1996, I received several of her books as an inheritance. One of these was a green-colored hardback, missing the slipcover, titled A Man Called Peter. I learned that it was the biography of a former Chaplain of the U.S. Senate, and, having just worked in the Senate a year earlier, I was intrigued. Little did I know, however, the story that awaited me.

Born in 1902 in Scotland, Peter Marshall began life impoverished and mistreated by his step-father. He eventually worked in coal mines while studying for the ministry. In 1927, a cousin paid his way to America, and he eventually completed seminary training and was ordained.

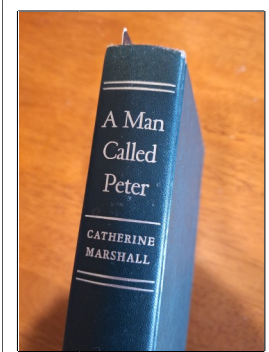

A highly gifted preacher, Marshall's skills were quickly recognized and in 1937 he was recruited to pastor New York Avenue Presbyterian Church in Washington, D.C. Often, the church could not hold all of the people who came to hear him preach. On January 4, 1947, Marshall's pastoral career peaked when he took up the role of Chaplain of the U.S. Senate.

It may be hard for us to imagine a time when the Chaplain of the Senate was a celebrity figure, but Peter Marshall was just that. His prayers to open the Senate each day, normally a largely ignored, pro forma routine, were instead so meaningful and unusual that Senators gathered early just to hear them, and they were regularly published in newspapers. As the first immigrant to hold the role of Senate Chaplain, Marshall was also deeply aware of the blessings God had bestowed on America, and the responsibility that came with citizenship in such a nation.

Peter Marshall's life was cut tragically short by a fatal heart attack, 77 years ago this month, on January 26, 1949. He was only 46 years old. His wife, Catherine, published A Man Called Peter in 1951. In 1955 it was adapted into an Academy Award-nominated film. Catherine Marshall would go on to be a famed novelist in her own right, best-remembered for her 1967 book, Christy.

As we begin a new year, we can hope and pray that men and women of godly passion can once more stir our nation's leaders with the Word of God.

Blessings,
Pastor Bill

The Outreach Committee

Reminder for 2026: The Outreach Committee collects the fronts of all greeting cards and sends them to St Jude's Ranch for Children. A container is in the first classroom on the left at the top of the stairs leading to the Sunday School classrooms. Thank you to everyone who participated in 2025.

Reminder: Save your pill containers

for the New Market Christian Church. They are sending them to a mission in Africa. Be sure to remove labels. Give them to Dixie or leave them in the first classroom on the left at the top of the stairs in the Sunday school rooms.

2025 OUTREACH SUMMARY

"Whenever we have the opportunity, we should do good to everyone, especially to our Christian brothers and sisters."
Galatians 6:10

Congratulations times two!

Collin and Lauren Bartlett have added a baby boy, Connor, and baby girl, Evelyn, to their family. Big brother, Henry, is so sweet to his little brother and sister.

On Saturday, December 6th, Versiti Blood Center of Indiana came to New Market. It was a very successful morning with 17 units collected. Thank you all for supporting this important mission. Photo above of Joe and Cece Kraynak donating.
